WE FEEL IT.

The change of temperature began to be felt early yesterday morning, and along with it came a chilling rain.

Dark skies, wet streets, cold winds, and occasional show were the features of the day, making it one of the most disagreeable experienced here for many months.

The only comfort it brought was to the dealers in gum shoes and coats who, having had a particularly unlucky year, were yesterday enabled to run off some little stock that might otherwise have burdened their shelves and counters for twelve months to come.

MR. CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER. His Visit to Richmond College Last Night.

Personal Points. The visit of Mr. Warner, to whom the southern people are greatly indebted for more faithful portraitures of their daily life and business thrift than sometimes falls to their lot at the hands of editors and correspondents, has been greatly relished by the Rielmond people. He came especially to task of prison retorm, he lingers to mingle somewhat in the social and intellectual pleasures of his many friends and admirers.

During his stay he has yielded to invita-tions to appear before the Literary Club at their meeting on Friday night and before the public in a lecture at litehmond College last evening.

Mr. Warner is a graduate of Hamilton of the class of 1851. The regular diploma he received was made more valuable by the last that it was accompanied by the first prize in English, thus foretelling his eminent career as a writer. He has since received degrees from Yale and Dartmouth. The journalistic work of Mr. Warner has been constant since when a student he contributed to "Knickerhocker" and "Futnam." For awhile he practiced law, but soon returned to his first love. BEEING THE WOLLD.

Mr. Warner has not confined himself to his study. He has travelled, and mingling with men, seeing his own country and Europe, he has been greatly broadened in his views and sympathies. Perhaps he is best known to the southern people by his articles in the Harper's Weekly entitled "Studies in the South," in which he placed before the country a careful discussion of the social, political, and educational condition of our section. The author work of Mr. Warner is too extensive to be dwelt upon in this brief notice. His writings are all attractive and his reputation steadily grows.

are all attractive and his reputation steads by grows.

At the college.

His theme hast hight was "Fiction in Its Relation to Every-Day Life." An intellectual, appreciative audience greeted the speaker and he gave them a literary treat.

Mr. Warner was greeted by a large audience, when the fact is considered that the hight was the worst of the winter—cold, wet, snowy—and was introduced by Frofessor Puryear. His discussion of the "Relation of Fiction to Life" was charmingly ornate yet wisely practical. His proposition was that we all love illusions and love to idealize our lives, and this gave a wide scope to his rich imagination and to his acquaintanceship with the great guthors and works of fiction.

At the conclusion of the lecture Hon. J.

L. M. Curry congratulated the audience the opportunity they had of hearing that the discharge was due to the stone which the negro held being brought into contact with the lock of the gun. This may have occurred by his striking at Sublett with the stone while held in his hand or by throwing it at him. At the conclusion of the lecture Hon. J.

L. M. Curry congratulated the audience upon the opportunity they had of hearing such a man upon such a theme.

Upon his motion the audience tendered Mr. Warner a vote of thanks for his interest in Richmond and Richmond College, and especially for the delight afforded them by the lecture on the "Relation of Fiction to Lafe."

At the conclusion of the lecture Hon. J.

by fire Friday night.

The entire stock was consumed, and while the walls were not burned to the ground the building was a complete wreek.

The fire occurred about midngiht and is thought to have been the work of an incondiary. The bright light could be seen from elevated points in the eastern portion of the city, as the inflammable material burned with great fury.

The mill, though not a new one, was an excellent piece of property and was valued at $4,500. The insurance, all in companies represented by Mr. Thomas L. Alfriend, aggregates $3,500.

Major W. Miles Cary vesterday received letter from his partner. Mr. P. A. Later in the day he got a telegram from Mr. Sublett saying: "Claude resting well; his condition no worse."

It appears that Claude Sublett and Robert Allen had been out hunting robins and on their return through the Fair-Grounds Sublett got into an altercation with a colored boy named Sam. Taylor, (Taylor had given offence to some ladies who asked the young gentlemen to drive him off. Words massed and Taylor called Sublett a liar.) Taylor had a stone in his hand and Sublett grabbing his gun by the barrel was in the act of striking him with the stock when the gun went off and the entire charge from one chamber entered the body in front just above the hip-bone and on the left side.

Mr. Edgar Allan's Change of Residence.

Mr. Allan was yesterday asked by a representative of the Dispatch it it is true, as has been published, that he intends to remove his residence from this city to Washington, and he said: "While my plans are not yet fully matured it is my purpose during this year to open an office in Washington and have my family locate there, where my married daughter, Mrs. F. H. Crump, now resides. This arrangement may not be carried out before my return from Europe this fall, whither I am going in June to bring my youngest daughter, Lottie, from Germany, at which place she has been in school the past two years. In any event I shall continue my office in this city until I determine whether I will change my residence permanently. My time will then be divided between this city and Washington. I shall keep considerable real estate in Virginia, being satisfied I cannot better some of my investments anywhere else."
